

Spring 2011

5th WARD REPORT

Alderman Leslie Hairston • 2325 E. 71st Street • Chicago, Illinois 60649 • 773-324-5555

Dear 5th Ward Residents:

I want to begin by saying how honored I am to continue representing this vibrant ward. At my March ward meeting, I introduced the concept of Participatory Budgeting, featured on the front page of this Report. I enthusiastically explained how constituents would have direct influence on how my office dispenses funds allotted the ward for infrastructure improvements. One woman said, "Isn't that the alderman's job? We just re-elected you, so you must be doing okay."

While I appreciate her vote of confidence, I am thrilled and energized that over 50 residents have already volunteered to help my office do an even better job. It truly "takes a village" to achieve general consensus about how to prioritize various aspects of our physical environment. People often feel in the dark about why one repair or upgrade got implemented faster than another. When Ald. Joe Moore involved his entire 49th Ward in the budget process, he discovered residents could agree on enhancements closer to someone else's backyard—even dog parks or public murals.

Another of my goals is improving the ward's business environment. I am putting together a think tank to tour the ward and advise on development opportunities. I am also working with the South Shore Chamber and Special Service Area staff on standards for our commercial corridors, such as appearance, proper documentation and evidence of intent to fix violations.

Third, I intend to make my office more efficient, responsive and proactive in encouraging two-way communication. We are modernizing our technology and Web site to reach a broader base of constituents. I have added a new assistant, Ellie Fox, to facilitate the prompt handling of complaints, inquiries and suggestions.

In sum, my watchword for this next term is "together." Personally, I am looking forward to tapping deeper into your talents and ideas, helping to build bridges between the variety of organizations and neighborhoods focused on improving a specific area, as well as partnering with bordering wards on more regional interests. I am confident that, together, we will move the 5th Ward even farther.

Sincerely,

Leslie A. Hairston
5th Ward Alderman

COMMUNITY INTEREST

Participatory Budgeting: "Show Me The Money"

"The response has been very positive," says Ald. Leslie Hairston about constituents' upcoming involvement in deciding how to allocate her $1.3 million 5th Ward menu budget for 2012. The funds cover improvements to such infrastructure as thoroughfares, lighting, parks, and public murals.

AT AN APRIL NEWS CONFERENCE OUTSIDE THE WARD'S STREETS AND SAN OFFICE, ALD. LESLIE HAIRSTON DREW ATTENTION TO A PENDING DEAL TO PRIVATIZE THE BLUE CART RECYCLING PROGRAM. SHE LIKENED IT TO THE PARKING METER FIASCO IN TERMS OF A "SWEET DEAL" FOR THE CONTRACTOR, WITH FEW BENEFITS FOR CHICAGOANS IN TERMS OF ACCOUNTABILITY, COST EFFECTIVENESS, SERVICE OR EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES. STANDING WITH HER ARE (FROM LEFT) ANTHONY WRIGHT, PASTOR OF JUST CHRIST MINISTRIES; ALLYSON SCRUTCHENS, REPRESENTING THE SOUTH SHORE CHAMBER SPECIAL SERVICE AREA 42; HENRY ENGLISH, PRESIDENT OF BLACK UNITED FUND INC.; JANE CIACCI, PRESIDENT OF THE HYDE PARK-KENWOOD COMMUNITY CONFERENCE; AND SAM BINION, REVERE C.A.R.E. PROGRAM DIRECTOR..

Hairston introduced Participatory Budgeting at her March ward meeting. She expects to continue volunteer solicitation, education and planning through late summer, with the real work to begin thereafter and completed early next year.

Over 1,200 municipalities around the world use PB to promote democratic participation, inclusion and accountability. When Chicago Ald. Joe Moore pioneered it for his menu preparation in 2009, his 49th Ward became the first political jurisdiction in the nation to adopt the process.

At the 5th Ward's April meeting, Moore described a six-month span of neighborhood assemblies and committee meetings to identify, prioritize and develop proposals to address local infrastructure needs. A ward-wide election open to any resident age 16 and above drew over 1,600 to vote on which projects to submit to the city for implementation. Aldermanic menu funds cannot be spent on programs and services, such as art classes or youth sports. Visit participatorybudgeting.org to learn more.

Papa John's Pizza Rounds Out Jeffery Mall

Dev Rao and Sam Patel just opened a Papa John's Pizza next door to the Subway Patel has operated for nearly a decade in the mall at Jeffery Blvd. & 71st St. Rao loves the location. "It's surrounded by large buildings, with a lot of people walking by and parking for drivers. Plus, there's not much choice for quality pizza."

Rao, who owns other eateries on the South Side, says the new place has already drawn customers from as far as 127th St. "It's carryout, and we deliver from Lake Shore Drive to State Street, between 63rd and 79th Streets. About 20 percent of people use the Internet, which is preferable to make sure they get exactly what they want."

Rao currently employs three full- and about seven part-timers, all of whom live within eight blocks. A Chicagoan for over 20 years, he believes it important to be involved in the community, with CAPS meetings at the top of his list.

Green Light to New Ujamaa Construction Co. Location

Passersby probably will not see signs proclaiming the renovated building at 7744 S. Stony Island Ave. as the new headquarters for Ujamaa Construction Co. President Jimmy Akintonde explains his business primarily serves institutional clients. Still, it stands out on the U.S. Green Building Council Register as the first Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design structure south of the Museum of Science and Industry.

"We're going for silver certification under the renovation section," says Akintonde, who has done several eco-friendly projects. Ujamaa's own two-story building already boasts several efficiencies throughout 15,000 square feet of office, shop, warehouse, and parking space. They include a green roof, toilet fixtures that use 30 percentage less water, as well as lighting and zoned mechanical and electrical systems to conserve energy. Akintonde plans to install solar panels this fall.

Questions About "Vague" Bouchet Restructuring

On April 27, the Chicago School Board approved a CPS proposal to change the "educational focus" of Edward A. Bouchet Math & Science Academy to the International Baccalaureate Primary and Middle Years Programme, as well as rename the elementary school Bouchet International Academy of Chicago.

According to CPS, current students and attendance area boundaries for the location at 7355 S. Jeffery Blvd. will not be affected. Implementation begins this fall for grades K-2 and 6-8, expanding to 3-5 next year. Spanish will be the language taught K-8. All current Bouchet teachers must reapply, with training for those hired to begin in the summer.

"Obviously all of us welcome improvements that may make our kids more competitive," noted Ald. Leslie Hairston. "But it can't simply be cosmetic. The parents love their principal. They don't want to lose good teachers or have everything turned upside down."

Hairston has been meeting with CPS officials to clarify what her office calls "rather vague" eligibility criteria for making Bouchet a feeder school for the IB program at the new South Shore International College Prep. She also wants to ensure veteran teachers are not replaced simply to hire younger ones at lower pay.

Woodlawn Summit Gives "On the Ground" View of Issues

The 2nd Annual Woodlawn Community Summit, "Building The Blueprint One Block Club At A Time," provided residents "an energizing morning of reflection and action for their neighborhoods/businesses." It drew representatives from schools, block clubs, the police and elected officials.

"It's always heartening to see people so engaged in trying to get their hands around the big local issues affecting their lives," said Ald. Leslie Hairston, who attended along with her staff. "I participated in a discussion strategizing ways for making the area safer proactively rather than reactively, especially during the summer." Other panels tackled public education, community revitalization and urban agriculture/sustainability.

The Kenwood Pointe Homeowners Association, Woodlawn Neighbors Association and South East Chicago Commission convened the gathering in March, in partnership with the host, the University of Chicago Office of Civic Engagement. To learn more about quarterly working sessions planned to begin in June, call Elizabeth Gardner at 773-575-4222 or the SECC at 773-324-6926.

a recent news release from Ald. Leslie Hairston warning of problems with the city's plans to privatize the blue-cart recycling program. Ciacci's inquiry about what residents could do encouraged Hairston to hold a news conference with other concerned leaders of community organizations.

Though HP-KCC will continue such popular events as its spring Hyde Park Garden Fair and fall Used Book Sale, Ciacci promises more outreach to expand membership and add affiliates.

"We're planning an event for the fall to bring together representatives of organizations to learn what our common interests are and how we can work together," explains Ciacci. "I'm thinking we may end up with a coalition of sorts for socio-political action."

Ciacci also notes, "We took all references to geographical boundaries out of our bylaws a few years ago. As a second step, we may want to stretch ourselves—identify and meet with organizations beyond Hyde Park-Kenwood."
